

Connector and pitcher block assembly including the connector

Published date: June 1, 2017

Technology description

An engaging member according to one embodiment of the present invention includes a plate-like plate portion having a wrinkled portion formed by repeated acid and bone, the structure being inserted into a permeable space between the blocks. The corrugated portion is provided with a plurality of layers in an outward direction from the center of the rolled plate portion of the corrugated portion, so that permeable voids in the up-down direction can be formed.
