Published date: Feb. 1, 2012

Technology description

Summary

This software allows core managers to enter orders into the system. It also allows customers in product cores to scan their items at a self-service checkout terminal. These orders are accumulated into electronic invoices and e-mailed to the customers each month. An electronic upload file containing order information is also created for the finance department. The system also contains a physical inventory module and receiving module for the product cores.
